

Wednesday, August 17, 2022

1:00 PM – 1:20 PM

Zero Trust – Challenges and Opportunities

Ron Fodor

Operations Manager

Huntington Ingalls Industries

Abstract:

The Zero Trust framework shatters the archaic perceptions of how to operate securely...it provides freedom and security of movement across networks, not just within one with the one with a strong security perimeter. While most people believe Zero Trust is a better security framework than the "walled garden" approach, there are several issues that need to be addressed before Zero Trust becomes reality. Governance, policy, funding, and the technical implementations of a Zero Trust architecture require substantial work and investigation before we can realize the benefits and move beyond the paradigm of "trusted" networks to a more resilient and robust security architecture.