

Tactical Data Operations

Ron Nixon

CTO & CISO, Federal Organization

Cohesity

Information has always been the key to success on and off the battlefield, but that success depends on having that information available at the right place at the right time. The transition to a “digital force” has data production and consumption growing at exponential rates. This showcase takes the nuances and challenges of battlefield data management into account as we will discuss practical solutions to meet tactical DataOps requirements.